Oil Spills and the Collective Consciousness

[Prior to the meeting, there was a discussion about the recent oil spill in the ocean]

Trance Channeling begins

: What does 'OIL' represent in the body of Mother Earth?

Group Member: Blood....Lubricant....

Group Member: Life force...light....abundance....

: Correct: just as you have a venous system...a network of arteries, veins, and capillaries that flow through you, circulating blood that carries oxygen, nutrition, energy through your physical body, so do the channels of oil within planet Earth.

Mother Earth and the Human structure also have meridians and other energetic networks that distribute prana, the life-force, within self.

Both systems must work in harmonious conjunction.

Oil, within planet earth, serves as a distributor of energies, nutrition, vital information and illumination. Oil serves to lubricate and balance the earth.

O . I . L: Original Illumination through Light.

Oil is a denser version of what you call 'liquid light': layer upon layer upon layer of Pure Consciousness.

It does offer itself to the human race for fuel and energetic illumination, but it is NOT to be over-used, exploited and taken for granted. That is a lesson you are learning right now.

You (referring to a member) made a potent statement earlier, when you said if this was the part of the Plan, then it must be allowed to happen, or else Mother Earth would have stopped it. You are only partially correct.

Mother Earth does regulate what is best for herself & of course, for her children. However, she opens up 'windows of opportunity' to all her inhabitants, and then stands back and lets them experiment. Do you not sometimes stand back and let your children learn through experience?

This is one such 'window of opportunity', where she has permitted the human race to 'play with fire' at the cost of self destruction. Will she clamp down on it? YES...it is likely that she will clamp down before her children go too far and really hurt themselves.

But there again, her definition of 'too far' may differ from yours. This action has slashed the aorta of Mother Earth, causing grievous harm to her, and to all of you. Of course there will be repercussions & of course, on a higher level, this also will set off a series of chain reactions that are necessary for the evolution of planet Earth & her inhabitants.

Humanity has to now learn instant responsibility. You do not now have the luxury of learning to be responsible over an extended period of time; there has to be an instant awakening. Acknowledge your actions collectively, and reverse the process. What do we do next?

You are not being asked to give up transportation, heating & electricity; but you being urged to explore and use the alternative, non-invasive methods that your scientists have already discovered.

These, as you well know, are being suppressed by a group of people whom you term 'the illuminati': those who are motivated by greed and self-serving purposes, rather than thinking of the betterment of the collective, and the illumination of all.

Group Member: Can you tell us what the repercussions would be like?

: Yes: a series of chain reactions is already in motion & you will not be able to stop the various volcanic eruptions that will now take place. This particular event has also further weakened the fault line in California.

You may wonder how this is so: remember, when energetic and molecular chain reactions take place, they travel great distances. Areas that are strong may remain relatively unaffected, but areas around the globe that are already weak may be 'pushed to the edge'. The fault line in California is now approaching its critical point. And this fault line is not the only one.

Group Member: What about Yellowstone Park? It has the earth's largest volcano, which, if it erupts, could possibly affect the entire world, and cause mass destruction. That's what the scientists say...

: It is unlikely that Mother earth will permit that level of self-destruction. However, if the human race continues to 'fool around' with the planet (yes, we use these words quite deliberately, as they imply woeful negligence and short-sightedness on the part of humanity), you will then set off a chain reaction that will have repercussions far beyond your planet itself.

You are currently disturbing the ecological balance of all species that inhabit the planet. You forget that these species have a very strong collective consciousness. They may not 'hit back at you', but they will secure themselves; and in doing this, they will cause 'energetic tensions' within the surface of the Earth. This will also change the balance of all species in existence. As well as the balance of oxygen, water and other nutrients.

Ecological imbalances also affect the planetary bodies and the space around planet Earth. You are already aware of global warming, of ruptures occurring in your atmosphere and of the thinning of the ozone layer.

These imbalances also affect the atmospheric and ecological balance of neighboring celestial objects and regions in space; both in your immediate vicinity and those further away as well.

Now if it not appropriate for them to shift due to the changes on planet Earth, they too will secure themselves with their consciousness & that will have a rebound effect on planet Earth. Your actions have multi-dimensional repercussions...so awaken!

Group Member: There are new planetary alignments taking place like the 'Grand Cross' & the eclipse...what impacts are these going to have on Mother Earth, with all this oil spill.....?

: When planetary bodies re-align themselves, as they do constantly, in the evolution of the Universe, this is generally overseen by a groups of the appropriate 'energy masters'. The delicacy of this operation is vital, as it must benefit not only the planetary body itself, but all its neighbors.

What is currently happening on earth, due to the irresponsibility of its inhabitants, is causing a 'billiard ball' effect: when you fire a ball into the center of a group of billiard balls, they tend to 'shatter randomly' and spin away at great speed.

Now you may say, "I know that nothing occurs randomly in the Universe", and to an extent, you would be correct. But here lies the paradox: there is a level of 'randomness' which is accounted for, and which generates pure creation. But when irresponsibility is added into the equation, other planetary bodies may be propelled into energetic shifts and spaces, for which that they are not ready.

When this occurs, they even shift their course of personal growth and evolution, even their course of moment-to-moment recreation...and they always work towards securing self first.

So the changes that they are now forced into must have an effect which rebounds on planet earth...which may not please you at all!

But there are also other, more exciting opportunities that then open up. Take the earth example of a person who is suddenly 'forced' to vacate her home, and move to another city...yes, she may be devastated, but she can also choose to view this 'forced move' as an opportunity to shift, to explore new avenues, and to go on a life-adventure.

Group Member: Can we, as a group, give healing to the oil-spill situation? Would that help?

🌅: At this point in time, instead of attempting to 'plug the hole', we suggest that work the humanity's collective consciousness: tap into it and feed it with your awareness. One person can change the whole!

Group Member: You have often spoken of other beings that live in Planet earth...some even in different forms, so one form must be Oil as well! Did those beings provoke what recently happened in Mexico?

🌅: The Beings within planet Earth, who are in semi-solid, liquid and gaseous forms, are all working at breakneck speed right now to contain this, but they are working from their perspective & not from the perspective of humanity. Which means that they are not out to 'strike back at you' at all; but they will do what is best for self. This, for example, may lead to a period where oil seemingly 'dries up'; but this will provoke humanity to explore other options.

Group Member: Consciously, I know, humanity is not doing much for the Earth; but on an energetic level, is all humanity working for Earth?

🌅: This is a trick question & one that deserves an answer. You may wonder how the collective consciousness, which is not bound by physicality, ever be out of alignment. How it can't always function for the good of all.

The collective consciousness

The collective consciousness, dear friends, is made up all that you are...your thoughts, your happiest moments, your greatest fears, your sadness, your joy, your exuberance, your limitations & your expansion. It therefore contains conflicting data, just as you do: can't you be happy and sad at the same time?

The collective consciousness can be likened to an energy tide, in which all the waves and currents do not always flow in the same direction. At times, areas flow smoothly in one direction; and at other times, there are 'stormy seas'. Sometimes a storm can give rise to a period of calm: after a great natural or man-made disaster, haven't you noticed how everyone suddenly seems to come together, to help one another? The 'flow' suddenly becomes synchronous, and people experience a 'tide' of love, compassion and unity. But, after a while, when the episode has passed, the consciousness often reverts to its conflicted self, and self-serving ends suddenly become the norm again.

But with each such episode, you are taken further towards 'collective oneness'. Some areas learn better through adversity (rebuilding a city after the devastation of war); others prefer to use a 'focal point' (such as working towards raising their GNP, furthering their technological expertise or even winning an International sporting event!)

India's focal point, right now, is to raise her overall standard of living. So it is a beautiful focal point to work towards & every man, be he a rich man in a city or a poor man in a village, is using this focal point to take the collective further. That is why your economy is growing at such a rapid rate right now, as compared to the economies of other countries.

Group Member: You said 'collective consciousness' I don't see the mineral kingdom, the plant kingdom, animal kingdom contributing to the oil spill...I think it's the human consciousness that is in greed & fear, and that has created the oil spill so....how does this 'collective consciousness' work ?

: You are correct, dear friend; we are speaking of the human collective consciousness. You may recall that, at a previous session, we spoke of the different collective consciousnesses, and stated that the mineral kingdom was growing at the most rapid rate of all. From the perspective of the Mineral collective, this is actually serving her; and will only serve to increase her vibration.

Group Member: Right now, at this moment, what do you see happening with the oil spill?

: What we hope is that this fairly serious event will awaken humanity to the degree where it will now start taking responsibility for the fair and just use of oil and other elements on and within Planet Earth. Larger and larger groups of humans are now working with awareness.

During 2010, another element has to be added to your growth pattern: that of endeavor. You now have to ask yourselves...what am I DOING about it? Some may actually need to instigate protest marches. Others may find the need to send out emails, furthering awareness. Yet others may feel impelled to work 'hands-on'. Knowledge, on its own, is now not good enough. You have to add to this, the 'doing'.

What we see....is that a portion of humanity will endeavor & a portion will still remain inert, but what the balance will be, we are not able to predict. If endeavor goes beyond 51%, the entire event can be fully reversed. If endeavor only reaches 49.9%, then you are in for a tough time.

Group Member: What date is the cut off point?

: Consciousness will determine the time it needs. But, as the 'graph of responsibility' rises, the time window keeps getting smaller. As you awareness increases, you actually have less and less time in which to implement the necessary changes.

Group Member: WOW!

: Yes: so don't waste your time.

Group Member: May I add to this? There is a Global Consciousness Project which was initiated at Stanford, and which now has 65 such stations around the world. They actually have scientific instruments that measure Global Consciousness. Just before 9/11, the global consciousness graph took an upward swing...they knew that a 'world event' was about to take place, but they are, as yet, unable to predict where, or what it is going to be. The same thing happened just before the Tsunami. But in between such events, the graph drops to about 5%. We seem to become inert and just plod along, doing the same old thing, and making the same mistakes. Where is our endeavor?

: Perhaps now you can all understand the significance of last week's meeting, in which we spoke of multi-vibrational states of being. On a practical note, you need to be able to drill for oil, but simultaneously understand the consequences of over-drilling, and need to know exactly how much to extract, when to stop, and when to explore alternative oil fields, or alternative methods of fuelling your vehicles and other oil-guzzling gadgetry.

Group Member: But we don't stop!

: But when you learn to work at multi-vibrational levels, you will! Let us take a mundane example: when you go to a buffet lunch, you will probably over-eat, but there comes a time when the body just shuts down, and you just can't go further. At that point you can't ignore the cries of the stomach and the digestive system! Your bodies all have built-in mechanisms that indicate what you should do or not do, what pleases self and what harms self, and so on. Most of the time, you choose to ignore these 'safety-nets'. But as you become more multi-vibrational, you will 'eat at the buffet' only to the degree that the bodies needs, without going any further. You are, indeed, working towards a new and harmonious balance between the body, the mind and the soul. And this naturally guides your relationship with self, and therefore with everything around you.

Group Member: In the past few weeks I have been manifesting as I have never done before: is this something to do with different levels of frequencies?

: It's everything to do with that, dear friend! You have been working on this a lot longer than most in this room, because it is a part of your energetic stream. Most of the time you have not been working on this consciously; but this, combined with your personal growth work, and the energies that you have attracted to self over the years, have fine-tuned your cellular structure to such a degree that you can now vibrate at differing frequencies at the same time. Now be aware of this, so that you can take the work even further, with personal endeavor.

Group Member: I get the feeling that the oil spill is affecting all herbivorous animals...the oil is spilling into the roots of the trees that they ingest. Its not a very happy feeling!

: It is affecting every aspect of Earth. Let us remind you of 2 aspects we have earlier discussed:

- 1) The pollution of your seas, and the warning not to over-indulge in seafood during this monsoon, because of the higher levels of poisoning in the fish. Now you are beginning to understand why we said that so strongly several weeks ago.
- 2) Two weeks ago, when we took you through an intensive body cleanse, we told you that all of you had major liquid imbalances in your physical bodies. Many of you called him (Sohrab) the next day, with complaints of excessive bleeding: blood in the urine, vaginal bleeding and nose bleeding. As above, so below. You were reflecting, and in some cases, receiving precognitive warnings of the upcoming oil spill.

Group Member: (Some part inaudible) ...the entire human race is draining the earth dry of oil. Can't we exist without doing this?

: Dear Friend, everything in the Universe is co-dependant, and must have a symbiotic relationship with things around it. Nothing exists on its own...nothing. Just look at your relationship with plants: they need your carbon-dioxide, you need their oxygen. Of course you can eat what you need, and use wood for construction and decoration. You are meant to use the bounty of planet earth for your healthy survival and for your abundance!

But a balance always has to be maintained. And this must come from your awareness, your fullness of self, and your healthy gratitude to all that is. Your ancestors understood this: but where has this awareness now gone?

If you have no respect for self, how can you respect others around you? If you do not love self, how can you possibly claim to love another being? If you abuse self, of course you will abuse your environment!

It is the time to look within: use this event to ask self, "Why am I permitting my life-blood to drain away? What does my life-blood even mean to me? Where am I frittering away my energies? Where I am plundering myself?"

Answer these questions before you point a finger at a 'foreign' oil company!

Group Member: I read in a newspaper that an engineer suggested a nuclear explosion to 'plug the hole'. Would this be appropriate?

: How does that sound to you?

Group Member: Not good...actually, awful!

: You have answered your own question. Your earth scientists already have the necessary technology to 'plug the hole', using only harmonic resonances and sound frequencies. And yet your governments do not permit this to be used.

Group Member: Can you tell us more about the current 'Illuminati' & who they are?

: Let us speak of the Illuminati in general, as there are so many sub-divisions of this category, including what you term the 'mafia'.

Some are very, very high-level teachers; humans who contain tremendous power and energy in their structures...

Group Member: Are they extra-terrestrial?

: Some of them are....

Group Member: Are they the 'Grays'?

: Some of them are, but once again your judgment is coming in....Are they the Grays V/S the Ashtaar? What if we said they were all the Ashtaar? They are not. Some of them are extremely high level 'energetic beings' whose mission is to come & dominate & control & impose their will upon you, so that you learn to break free. You have to learn to work as a collective. You have to learn to see the greater good of all as being more important than the good of a few.

Some of them are energetically wayward souls. Not 'good' or 'bad', but those who have strayed from their personal path of learning to exercise power in a balance manner.

You have both within the group you call the Illuminati, but whether they come from the first or the second group, they function as they must & it is your job as a collective to gently remove them & to work for the betterment of all.

You sometimes do need a tyrannical dictator, so that you can learn the value of freedom.

Group Member: How can you 'gently remove' them?

: By first acknowledging why they are there & why have you created them, because they are your creation, & secondly by raising your power so that they do not have a hold on you, because your power then is equal to theirs.

Add to this your endeavor, and do what you must physically to shake off their hold on society. Use the legal system. Stand up and speak out. Spread awareness. Face them head-on. Do what you must.

THE SPIRIT OF BOMBAY.
