The Mayan Civilization

Trance Channeling begins

Greetings!

You were introduced, last week, to two energies now being re-instated on Planet Earth: those of Atlantis and Mohenjo-Daro. Today, let us speak of the rapid rise of a third energy: that of the Mayan civilization.

First let us speak of the Mayans, as they existed in Earth's past. This culture was a perfect example of the union between the physical and the spirit realm. Not many cultures were able to bridge the two realms so naturally, seamlessly and effortlessly.

Their entire physical structure was also such that they resonated, unlike your cells, in perfect harmony with the Earth beneath them and the sky above them. Many of the Mayans were what you would consider 'star-seeds': some were indeed extra-terrestrials and universal friends who chose to incarnate into that society, holding different levels of recollection and consciousness about their origin.

Many of their great scientists, mathematicians and leaders were these, with a full recollection of their universal connect. Others had no conscious recollection of this, but resonated with universal energies to a very high degree; yet others worked in the perfect yin-yang balance of Earth and spirit simultaneously.

Let us begin by speaking of the Mayan calendar, with which you are all so familiar. This was predominantly formulated with extra-terrestrial help, using what might be considered an 'inter-galactic super computer'. The Universal friends responsible used their understanding of 12-dimensional grids and computations.

The reason that the calendar ended in 2012 was NOT because they foresaw the 'end of the world', but because they realized that, by this date, mankind would have achieved such a high level of personal evolution that they would be making all future choices moment-to-moment, which could and would change outcomes in an instant.

This is not happening at the rate at which the Universal friends anticipated that it would, but nonetheless, it is happening! Your moment-to-moment choices are now supreme, including your choice about when to shed your physical bodies and exit this planet.

So this calendar was formulated with an understanding of the likely evolution of Earth's knowledge, history, geography, mathematics and so on. They also used their 12-dimensional constructs to formulate holographic images that would plot the course of Earth's evolution, in relation to time.

But now, you have begun to understand (and work with) the concept that time is not linear, but simultaneous. They anticipated this, and allowed for a future calendar to then be formulated, taking into account this new 'twist'.

Indeed, it is but it is not going to happen on December 31, 2012. The transformation has already begun from 1999 onwards. From this year onwards, your mental concepts and your cellular structure, together, began awakening at a very rapid rate.

Now, as you near 2012, everything moves faster and faster. When the time comes, planet earth and all her inhabitants will have to instantly shift, evolve, mutate, and take course changes in their stride. So this period, before that date, is vital for your assimilation, your understanding of self and of your connect with the Universe and planet Earth. At that time, you will need to do everything instantaneously, without falling back on long periods of reflection.

Group Member: – Could you enlighten us about the Stargates? 10.10.10, 11.11.11...what are these, and what will trigger us at those times?

Mayan Collective: – These are but examples of millions of Stargates that are in existence, and constantly re-create themselves, moment-to-moment. They are also a vital part of the energy of sacred geometry: mathematics in its purest form.

You may find this hard to digest, but Mathematics is the most artistic and creative of all disciplines in existence. Yes, in existence. It comprises art, beauty, truth and creation at its purest.

When the energies of various numbers and symbols come together in their divine rhythm, one that is suitable for a planetary body and for all its inhabitants, then energy vortexes are instantaneously created. These vortexes do not originate from that planet; they are self-created, and generate mathematical-musical resonances.

So on earth, when you experience 'important' dates, such as the various equinoxes, solstices, or numerically vibrant dates such as 11.11.11 or 12.12.12, you suddenly experience magnificent energetic vortices, which take you to new levels of personal growth and evolution.

Now, whether or not you are consciously aware of this or not, you still experience their effects: they explode within you, creating magnificent resonances in your cellular structure, propelling you on your journey of expansion.

Now, many times you do not 'leap' as far as you could, as your cellular structures are generally resistant to change of any form, and fear their destruction. But if you could fully open to these leaps, individually and collectively, you could, in a single day, perform 'miracles'.

Yes, harnessing these energies and using them could change the pollution problem on your planet. You could shift earth's consciousness. You could even move your planet physically from one location to another.

That is the power, the energy, the creativity and the artistry of pure Mathematics. All it needs now is the human endeavor. More than this we will not say today.

Group Member: - Many scientists, like Stephen Hawkins, claim to know exactly when the world is going to end. Doesn't this conflict with the Mayans and their knowledge and predictions?

Mayan Collective: – Dear friend, you have been misinformed: nobody 'knows when the world is going to end'! Her course, and the course of her inhabitants, is changing and re-creating itself, moment-to-moment. If this is so, then how can there be 'predictions' that are accurate?

The planet is unlikely to ever 'explode into smithereens', BUT major shifts are most certainly going to take place...they have already begun.

Group Member: – Could you say that the Human Resonance theory and the planet moving into the Photon Belt are responsible for the change of consciousness that we are now all experiencing?

Mayan Collective: – It is the 'chicken and the egg' syndrome. It is the consciousness change of the planet that is shifting the planet into the photon belt and it is the energies of the photon belt that are simultaneously shifting the consciousness of the planet.

Let us now examine a few aspects of the Mayan civilization that you need to revisit, not only for historical interest, but because these energies are now going to be revisited by the collective on Planet Earth and utilized in the future.

We have already touched upon the first: the new, future calendar. This is already underway, but is woefully incomplete, because this will map out not only dates and years, but also probable courses, in terms of growth and expansion, of humanity's future.

You are working towards computing semi-predictive 'windows of opportunity' that the planet is likely to take: for example, what is already coming into your consciousness is an understanding that if you, as a collective, do not shift focus and stop rampant pollution, your oceans will eventually become poisonous to all.

You already know that this window that is opening up, but specific clarity will now be computed through this new calendar process, where you will begin to hear of probable dates and times of upcoming 'events'. This has already occurred: your scientists now have instruments that can measure the rise of consciousness before an event takes place, but they are unable to pinpoint where and what is going to happen. This will go further: you will be able to 'predict' events, and possibly shift outcomes, if the collective consciousness works towards that choice. This will give you greater responsibility, and a greater sense of self.

Let us now speak of the Mayan birthing process. Births (now we are talking about physical births) were predominately natural and smooth: the Mayans used a combination technique of vibration, tonality, massage and what they called 'energy bathing', to prepare the women for delivery.

Tonality was the most important of these. The Mayans understood the song of the universe to a level greater than even the Atlanteans. They had an innate understanding of vibration and tonality. They understood body rhythms, the rhythm of the earth, the stars above, and the Universe. They harnessed these energies by chanting, beating drums and using instruments similar to the harp and the lute, which created vibrations that were poured into the body of a woman, from her initial pregnancy, upto the time of delivery.

These specific tones and vibrations helped her align perfectly with not only her child's physical body, but its soul vibrations as well. She also aligned with the energies of the particular time and date of the child's impending birth, and with the earth and cosmic energies that would be in existence at that time.

When the body vibrates at this level of synchronicity, there is very little physical pain or resistance to the birthing process: for most, it was as easy as sneezing! [All laugh]

Group Member: – There must have had very happy babies...and mothers!

Mayan Collective: – Indeed! Of course there were exceptions to this: some were unable to align to perfection, others resisted the vibrations, and yet others might have chosen the experience of a 'difficult childbirth' for personal growth reasons. But, in general, the mothers and the children born underwent a non-traumatic experience.

Most of the babies also made the transition from spirit to physical matter without resistance.

Group Member: – What did the Mayans of that era look like?

Mayan Collective: – Let us speak of the physical Mayan characteristics: though there are always exceptions to the rule, in general, they were stocky, thick-set people, with relatively swarthy skin. They had short necks, circular heads, dark, straight hair and very large, expressive eyes.

Their almost ape-like physiques helped them remain grounded, in complete harmony with planet earth and nature in general, with water and sunlight and all the bounty of their home planet. They understood roots, plants, herbs, and used this to support their energetic work. When healing and balancing their people, they focused on light and vibration, light and vibration.

Energetically, their crown and third-eye chakras were merged. This permitted their acceptance of the cosmos in all its glory, and also permitted a wonderful yin-yang balance within self.

Group Member: – Why was the serpent so important to them?

Mayan Collective: – To explain this, we must backtrack a little. Do not now think that every Mayan in existence, during that period, was a fully-evolved and balanced human being. But their focus, in their chosen fields, was very intense.

Those who were farmers, for example, were extremely earth-connected, and understood the rhythms of the planet, the seasons, plants and animals, to a great degree.

The scholarly group and teachers had an immense knowledge of Universal lore, but may have been less aware than the farmer of planet Earth herself.

Though there were great divides between people of different strata of society (just as you have today), they all inherently experienced 'unity of self'.

The serpent in that era represented very much what it does today: the balancing of the chakras, the rising of the kundalini and indeed, pure power.

But it also represented the 'energy threads' that connect each and every planetary body in the Universe.

Do not forget: many of them were star-seeds. Many of them had recollections of past existences, and many had knowledge of time travel and inter-dimensionality.

The serpent served as a reminder of the power of self to be able to transcend time, space and dimension; and to be able to live in perfect balance the Earth and the Universe simultaneously.

Group Member:– Did they conduct human sacrifices?

Mayan Collective: – Yes: they did do so. Yes: from your perspective, this is a barbaric ritual and yes: most who did so, even in that era, were misguided. Remember, rituals such as Sati and ‘burning witches at the stake’ were practiced by other societies as well.

Many who underwent these experiences had contracted to do so for personal growth reasons, such as having perennial control issues over lifetimes. The experience of being the ‘sacrificial lamb’, for them, was necessary to shift an imbalance in their own energies.

Human sacrifice, in that era, had a different connotation to what it has today. Being so connected, as they were, to the Universe, they did not view the ‘shedding of the body’ with as much trauma as you do today.

This does not mean that all the people being sacrificed did not resist it, or did not feel fear. But they were able to shift from the physical, back into the natural spirit form, much more easily than the average criminal today whom you deem, in your infinite wisdom, that you have the right to kill for his misdeeds.

Group Member: Why are the pyramids so iconic to the Mayans?

Mayan Collective: – Dear one, we have spoken of the significance of pyramids, at great length, in the past. However, for the benefit of newcomers to the group, let us share some of the key points again.

Pyramids have unimaginable power: you have discovered, through scientific experimentation, that dull knives, when placed correctly within a pyramidal structure, come out ‘miraculously’ sharpened.

Their structure and dimensions facilitate preservation, revitalization and, in some cases, even the reversal of the aging process.

But, though they contain and channel vast amounts of energies themselves, they are only one part of a celestial energetic structure.

Let us explain this: each pyramid acts like an electric socket, a plug point. There are billions of pyramidal structures, some natural, some created, on different celestial bodies around the Universe.

When two such 'compatible' structures line up, due to the rotation and revolution of the celestial bodies on which they reside, they then 'connect', and an energy beam passes between them, each bouncing off the other, creating higher and higher frequencies and harmonies. This, then, forms the complete structure.

To use an earthly example: it is only when you insert a tubelight into the two end sockets that you receive its illumination.

Are you with us, so far? Now, imagine millions of such structures, connecting and disconnection, as they energetically line up for brief moments in time. You could liken this to a laser show, with beams of light of different colours constantly shifting and changing, crisscrossing one another, and constantly forming new energy grids.

This process creates 12-dimensional energy-exchange grids, which pass on not only vibration and harmonies, but also information, knowledge, music, wisdom, Inter-galactic cultural lore, and so on. These grids are even used by some species as 'expressways', to transport themselves around the Universe.

Some of the mysterious 'disappearances' in the Bermuda triangle have taken place when such a pathway has been created between a crystalline pyramid below the sea, and one on another planet, and people have 'accidentally' crossed through it. (Please remember that there are many other explanations for the 'disappearances', such as rifts in time, space and dimension, and inter-stellar wormholes).

Group Member: – But do they survive?

Mayan Collective: – Some do, and some don't. Some are simply transported, intact, into other spaces, dimensions or even timelines; others may be instantaneously broken up into individual molecules.

You may be interested to note that the process of being transported from one place to another through a pyramid-generated beam is being worked upon right now by your scientists. Your science fiction refers to it as 'beam me up'. In effect, this is a process of disassembling all the molecules of the person or object being 'beamed up', and then re-assembling them in exactly the same way at the other end.

Group Member: – The US government is currently experimenting with this transporter system.

Mayan Collective: – The US government already has transporter capability, but they have been unable to, as yet, perfect it. They are unable to re-assemble the objects perfectly. That will come, with time.

Psychic Technology

The third aspect we wish to speak of today, beyond the calendar and the birthing process is psychic technology.

You are already at the early stages of this: you have cars and robots that respond to voice patterns and heat signatures from your hand-prints. If your scientists drew on the newly-emerging Mayan energies, they would progress in leaps and bounds.

True 'psychic technology' is going to be earth's big new break-through, wherein the technology is going to be 'trained' to function in keeping with the user's personal energies.

Two people, for example, using the same 'computer', would then be able to access only that information which was in keeping with their individual levels of awareness, knowledge, wisdom and expansion. If one was an open-minded seeker, then he would be able to access information from around the Universe!

Group Member: – They already have a computer now, which is without keyboard: you think and it comes across in a typed matter. It's being produced commercially.

Mayan Collective: – This are the early steps, dear friend. Now imagine the joy of being able to use your power, your energies, your wisdom, your knowledge, in sync with a beautiful piece of technology.

Now you may question, "What if a person misuses this technology for theft or personal gain?" This could most certainly happen; and that is why this technology is being given to earth in very small stages. It will only evolve rapidly when the collective gets more responsible.

Let us end this session here. The three outlined steps are very important for your current evolution. Please share this with others: let them, too, consciously draw upon and benefit from the re-emerging Mayan energies.

The ability now to connect with and understand mathematics, in its artistry, does not mean that you have to sit and study pure maths. You simply have to open yourselves to mathematical concepts, to numbers and to sequences. Appreciate the mathematical artistry that is in everything within and around you.

The birthing process, in all its forms, is also rapidly shifting. More natural births are also being desired now, and people are also more ready to work at 'giving birth to the new self'. You are also much more aware, now, of energies, frequencies and vibrations. Use this new-found knowledge.

If, for example, you are in pain and do not have access to medicine or a doctor, instantly ask yourselves, "What energies or resonances do I need right now?" You will be able to draw on your own reserves, on the energies around you, or even natural herbs, remedies and flowers that may be at hand. Self will guide you, if you only ask, and then listen!

Also, please re-examine your relationship with technology in general. Some are extremely resistant to this, others are obsessed with it...both are imbalances. Find out, for self, why this is so. Ask self how you can shift this.
