THE HIGHER ENERGY OF THE OBAMA

Channeled by Sohrab

The Killing of Osama Bin Laden

[Osama Bin Laden was killed on May 2, 2011, just 3 days before this channeling]

Trance Channeling begins..

Greetings from the energies of the Obama.—Yes, The Obama.

I have made a grave mistake. All I have done is physically kill a twin aspect of self. This mistake will have repercussions on my personal growth, evolution and development.

I perceived that this physical act ‘had to be done’; yet there is always a choice. I must now bear the consequences of my choice, which I shall do fearlessly.

Though I do not understand this in the physical, by killing an aspect of self, I have only depleted the “who I am”. It will now be my task to begin to recreate self anew, from a space of depletion, and I will. It will just make the journey harder.

I am speaking from a personal point of view, and not from the position I hold: however, all future decisions that I make for my people and my country will have to be weighed, by self, with great care. I must focus upon the greater good of all, rather than that of a single country.

Do I apologize for my actions? NO, I had to take them.

Do I recognize the consequences? YES, at a higher level.

Will these consequences filter down into my consciousness? YES, in time.

I am more ‘awakened’ in the physical than I let on to the general public. My motives are pure; and my desire for the greater good for the country and the world is genuine. You may recall that when I last spoke to you, I pointed out that I would, in all probability, make some mistakes. This was one of them.

Group Member: Was this a personal mistake? But how can it be a mistake, if it is for the greater good of all?

It was a mistake. Let me explain this. Of course, from the spirit perspective, there is no such thing as 'a mistake': everything is perfection. I am aware of that.

But there comes, in each person's life, a fork in the road. And depending on your choice, you take self and a group of people down two very different paths. When you are in a position of great public responsibility, you have to weigh the two options very carefully.

Neither path can be 'wrong', but one path can lead the group through a very "rigorous growth pattern." Here, the leader has to choose what is best for the greater good of all, rather than what is good for self first. This is where I erred.

I may have cloaked this decision in terms of 'taking this action for the greater good of all', but my energies behind this decision were biased. I did this for me.

Of course this action will serve my country; but it will now offer her experiences that she, as a collective, may not have chosen, had I not been at the helm. I have now set into motion several long-term consequences and experiences, and I must now take responsibility for my actions.

Group Member: So what kind of repercussions are you talking about?

On the personal level, the attacks on my life will now increase. There have already been many, of which you are unaware; I will now have to be extra vigilant.

On a national level, there are now likely to be more 'attacks', as the hatred towards my people is already increasing.

You may recall that, even before I was elected, I spoke to this group. I shared with you that I had chosen to hand over, to the people of the world, their desire for my leadership. If the collective deems me unsuitable, I have given them permission to remove me from office, and if necessary, to even take my life.

I have offered myself up for assassination, not out of weakness, but out of strength.

Group Member: Why would you want to do that? Don't you feel that, by this action, you would be depriving your country of stable leadership?

My friend, do not think that I am speaking from the position of a 'victim'. My motives and my actions are, in general, pure. I do not question this particular action I just took; I only question the motivation behind it. I came from the position of 'me first', and 'my country' second. In the future, of course I will still take decisions based on what I think is best for my country; but I will attempt to listen to the 'desire of the collective' more clearly.

Though you watched many of my countrymen celebrating joyously, the collective desire of the United States was NOT 'an eye for an eye'. The collective desired that he simply be brought to justice. The collective did not desire me to 'play God'. The alternative solution was capture and incarceration. This scenario did not have to be an execution.

Group Member: So what happens now?

Now there will be repercussions for self, for my country and for the world. This action has only provoked other groups to join the regime of terror: this will be seen over time. The question that I am currently struggling with is this: have I really beheaded the monster, or have I only provoked it to grow more heads?

Group Member: But wouldn't an action like this urge the group consciousness to say "no more terrorism"?

That was my hope and desire. An event of this magnitude and a decision of this magnitude has a worldwide effect. It engenders very strong energies, vibrations and emotions all around.

It magnifies the 'cowboy nature' of my people: "Let's go get the bad guys!" But it also magnifies the aspect of "You did this to us, so we will retaliate in an even bigger way!"

This action did not, in actual fact, promote world peace.

Group Member: Had be been taken alive and kept in custody, would that action really have brought about world peace?

It may not have brought about world peace, but it would not have set in motion the chain of events that will now take place.

Group Member: Are we now headed for another cycle of chaos and terrorism?

That is the unknown factor. The collective consciousness is already rapidly changing, based on this action. Where exactly it will go, I do not know.

Group Member: The consciousness of universal existence is changing every day. All communities, for example, are also evolving and changing their old structures. But I feel that we are growing more and more hypocritical, instead of embracing all of humankind.

Do not underestimate the power of one single thought, of one single individual! Only observe what my single thought and action has brought about. I have affected the collective consciousness: I have to take that responsibility, and also live with the consequences of my action.

Group Member: How would you rate India's consciousness?

Before I answer, please understand that I am able to make this observation dispassionately, without prejudice.

India's obsession with greed and financial gain, for personal reasons, is so strong, that it overshadows all other possible positive attributes it has to offer the world.

There are many lightworkers, like yourselves, who are working very hard to correct this imbalance. But as long as India remains immersed in its greed, its separation, and its 'myself for me alone'; it will remain of little energetic consequence to anyone. Its vibrations have turned self-obsessed, instead of outward.

Group Member: Please don't blame yourself for your actions! You really were faced with an insoluble dilemma, and you did what you thought best. I am sure that we will all pull together and survive this. Don't feel so bad!

Thank you, dear friend!

Was it Ray 4 (Harmony through Conflict) that created this event, and influenced your actions?

Influenced, yes; but not directed my actions. People, in general, are now so energetically facile, that they are combining rays, in ways that were previously impossible. New, unnamed, hybrid rays are arising out of this, which have effects not yet quantified.

Though this is a natural part of Earth's evolution, it sometimes leads people to make experimental errors. You could liken this to a scientist in a laboratory, who has to undergo several failures before he succeeds in his experiment.

This process of 'short-circuiting' self with combinations of rays does tend to send people out of balance, temporarily. Each time this happens, you have to touch your own power and right the balance.

This process is taking place in the etheric wombs of men and women alike: we are all re-creating self at a very accelerated pace, and making mistakes in the bargain.

Group Member: This episode has done India a great service. It has exposed Pakistan as a terrorist hub, which we have been telling the world for ages. Also, through your action, a message has been sent to all terrorists: "Even if it takes us years, you will eventually get caught". Surely this will filter into their consciousness?

You are viewing their consciousness from how you would react or respond to the threat. On the contrary, this act (for which I take responsibility) has, in fact, increased their desire to 'die for the greater good of God'. It has urged them to get craftier, and to work harder at defeating those whom they perceive to be 'working against the will of God'. Please remember that, from their perspective, you are the infidel.

Group Member: Will their retaliation be nuclear?

Possibly. And biochemical.

Group Member: Four world events took place in a row: the Tsunami, the Royal Wedding, the passing on of Satya Sai Baba, and the Osama execution: what is the significance of this, in relation to 2012?

I am being told that this will be explained to you, in detail, at a later date, when more world events take place, forming a beautiful 'string of pearls'.

However, from what I understand, a series of 'energetic shocks' have been released, for the growth and development of Planet Earth, as a whole.

Each of these, pleasant or unpleasant, act as a jolt to the energetic system. They are received in the etheric womb, and unleash pulses which stimulate energetic growth and expansion.

Old patterns are being rapidly cleaned out, and the spaced generated are then filled with new, upgraded patterns and thought processes.

Different events are needed to stimulate this: a royal wedding will affect the human kingdom more than the animal kingdom, for example; whereas an earth tremor will affect the mineral kingdom the most.

Group Member: What is happening, in relation to all of this, in China?

China, as a collective, is at a precarious point, at this moment in time. There has been a tremendous rise in the consciousness of her inhabitants; yet they are being offered the opportunity to examine their balance of power, both internal and external. In many ways, it is like an energetic final exam.

Different areas within the country are releasing different energies, some of which deliberately conflict with one another. Certain areas are being rapidly uplifted; others are being deliberately caused to 'crash', so that they can give rise to new, Universal energies. A new "Chinese Symphony" is currently being created: what their music of the future will be remains to be seen.

Group Member: Are they likely to experience a monetary collapse?

They are likely to experience fluctuations in their monetary systems, as well as in the area of technology.

Group Member: Now that the world knows that Pakistan is a terrorist hub, and willfully harbors them---

Before you point a finger at another country, point it at self, first. Let me assure you that many in your political circles knew exactly where this particular gentleman was housed. Both countries have indulged in cover-ups, each for personal reasons. However, greed and self-serving motivation is common in all three of our countries, including mine.

Group Member: Other than violent repercussions, is this event also likely to lead to an economic crisis in various countries?

That is a very likely outcome. However, there is a team of Universal beings around Earth right now: great intellectuals, who are highly skilled financial spirit advisors. Thought most are not of this planet, some have experienced incarnations on it, at various points in time.

They are currently forming a 'spirit committee', to help stabilize the possible upcoming volatility in Earth's political, financial and technological arenas. One of these guides you are quite familiar with: in his recent incarnation, he was Nani Palkhiwala.

They are here as guides and advisors; but they do not have the right to directly change the collective consciousness. They can only urge it in the appropriate direction. But it is upto you to take or dismiss their advice.

Group Member: It has been said, in past channelings, that Nuclear war would now not be permitted, because of the damage it would cause to Gaia...so why now?

Human consciousness now holds extremes of creativity and destruction: if the collective chooses to totally destroy self, to re-create self anew, then nuclear power will be used. It is the one thing known to man that can not only shatter your physical bodies, but can also shatter your collective consciousness. That is its potency.

Group Member: You still have two years to mend things and come back and strengthen what you can do. I hope that you come back with a thumping majority, do what you have to do, and keep growing!

Thank you! It is my joy to serve self, my country and the world.

BLESSINGS FROM THE ENERGIES OF THE OBAMA.

A note from Sohrab:

After this rather controversial meeting, a couple of courageous group members came up to me and said that they disagreed with several points that Obama had made.

I explained to them that I had simply tapped into an aspect of his higher energies: this was not his "Ultimate Expansion". And therefore, this was his viewpoint at that level of expansion.

Is it the ultimate truth? Of course not! But through this process of questioning, agreeing or disagreeing, you are being urged to come to your own conclusions, push your boundaries, and move to your next level of expansion.

Friends, I urge you to do this with every single channeling you attend. And with every book you read.

Take from it what fits with you. Question the subject matter. Question self. Arrive at your own conclusions. Stay open to unexplored possibilities, but always touch your power.
