ASPECTS OF THE SOHRAB THAT ARE THE MEHER BABA.

ANOTHER ASPECT OF 26/11

(Prior to the meeting, Mancher Wadia was invited to share his first-hand experiences with the Taj Mahal Hotel shoot-out on 26/11. He narrated these with clarity and simplicity, and also explained that 'everything that could go wrong, went wrong', and yet, this is what saved his life repeatedly)

Trance Channeling begins

 When an experience of this magnitude is undergone by an individual, or a group, it always occurs for several reasons.

This friend, for example, is a 'teaching soul': his function, on earth, is to teach others through his experiences. Now, when we use the word 'teach', we do not mean that he has to hold classes; but he does have to enlighten others through the spoken word, the written word, and by example.

Teaching souls have different purviews: some have to reach the world; others only a small group of people. Yet each is equally essential and valid.

If you, dear friend, look back on your life, you will now recognize many such instances, where you have offered others the benefit of your experiences. Some of these experiences may have been much 'smaller' than this dramatic episode, yet they were as important to the recipients. You have sometimes taught by narrating 'positive' experiences; and at other times, you have taught through openly sharing of your 'mistakes'. You have the gift of honesty and openness: two essential qualities of a teaching soul.

The second reason you underwent this particular experience was to shift the course of your entire family. When we now speak of your 'family', we refer not only to your living relatives, but to your spirit ancestors as well.

The united higher soul of each family or clan, from time to time, appoints an individual to lead the family down a path of growth and evolution. You are your current family leader. And through this experience, you have offered your entire family the opportunity to touch courage in the face of adversity.

A third reason is this: you and your wife both hold soul energies that were required by many of those who passed over in the episode. Though you were consciously unaware of this, you facilitated the smooth passage for at least one thousand souls. Not only those who passed over in the hotel itself, but other souls around the world who had also chosen violent passages.

Very often, when various souls around the world choose to exit simultaneously, in the same manner (for example, through an explosion of some sort), they form a unique relationship with one another, in the form of an energetic group.

You and your wife both worked furiously, at a higher level, to facilitate the smoothest transition for one such soul group. To do this, you needed to be 'on the spot' at one of the multiple locations. Your physical proximity to those around you helped the entire group.

A fourth reason for your involvement with this experience: it was a possible exit point for your wife, but not for you. She was, at a higher level, contemplating it. You, in your magnificence, chose to accompany her, and support her through this process, no matter what she chose.

Had either of you known about this consciously, you might have attempted to prevent it from happening; therefore you had to be 'officially unaware' of the danger.

There were two moments in which she had windows of opportunity to take an exit. The first was on the balcony; yet the two of you moved into the room before the explosion took place. Had you not done so, in all probability, you would have been hurt, yet she would have been fatally wounded. The second exit point could have been taken by her, when the two of you were on the open roof, prior to being finally rescued.

In both cases, you would have been 'at her side', in full energetic support of her decision.

Now a further mission that you have undertaken, through this process, is to stimulate your personal growth. Through this event, you have begun to search in earnest. To examine self, and to explore life, moment to moment.

As a teaching soul, you are now being urged, by self, to share of yourself at all times. To speak to individuals and groups about your various experiences in life. To write. To communicate over the internet.

Do not now hold back: you have a responsibility to enlighten through sharing, but not to force others to accept your viewpoint or to follow your path.

Your responsibility ends, as it did today, when you finished sharing. Each person in this room, for example, has taken from your discourse what they need. No two people

'heard it' in quite the same way. Each will take home what he or she needs; each will benefit in his or her unique way.

Who is addressing us, please?

(Laughing out aloud) Blessings from Meher Baba! Kem chao badhao? Now who wants to ask questions?

So was their choice to go to the Taj a free-will one, or was it pre-destined?

In the case of his wife, her higher soul energies most definitely guided her there; therefore you could call it 'pre-destined' by Self, not by an external "God". She had to make sure that she would be there.

In his case, he made a higher-level, free-will choice to accompany her on her journey, and to support her through either of her choices.

Had she chosen to take an exit, he would have separated himself from her at that moment in time, as he was not about to follow suit.

What about the staff member, who shouted up to them from below, and guided them so perfectly to the emergency exit, at just the right time?

(Amused) You want to know if he was an Angel in human form, don't you? He was most certainly a human being; one who owed them a karmic debt. And with that one sentence, he fulfilled this. Yet to be able to fulfill this, he was, indeed, influenced by an Angelic presence.

Were you there?

Of course I was there! How do you know I wasn't planting bombs everywhere? (All laugh). In this particular case, the karmic link has been completed. He did it for himself, as much as for them. It is an example of perfect service: to self and to another, in equal measure.

Did he, in any way, at a higher level, influence her decision?

No. He could have, yet his love is so vast; and in this vastness, he chose not to influence her at all. Imagine the strength of his soul: he was willing to let his partner pass over, if that was her will.

Now let us move further. Whenever any event of great magnitude takes place; be it one you perceive as traumatic, or be it a large celebration; masculine and feminine energies swirl about, attempting to balance out each other.

At a wedding, for example, the couple and the attendees all experience high doses of masculine and feminine energies.

Recall what our friend (Mancher) earlier said: though he had moments of great fear and panic, he was fully alert at all times, and found himself 'just doing what he had to do', without question. This is an example of the heightened balance of feminine (creative) and masculine (initiative) energies.

In a case like this, some would be overwhelmed by fear at first (feminine imbalance) and then find themselves, out of self-preservation, coming up with an idea to save self (feminine balance). Others may take a foolhardy step (masculine imbalance) at first; and then do something else to save self (masculine balance).

Such situations push your masculine/feminine boundaries outward, forcing them to expand.

Do we always have to create traumatic situations, in order to grow?

Not at all! But unfortunately, the human race does not generally awaken until they experience physical or emotional pain. Do you consult a doctor, or examine the issue behind a twinge you feel? No, you wait until it is unbearable before you take action. Why? The root cause is the lack of self-worth.

Did he (Muncher), through this event, break his prior conditioning?

Indeed! He broke patterns and belief structures. Many of his attitudes were shifted. In fact, his entire perspective of life on planet Earth has changed. His test will now be whether he takes these further, or slips back into his old ways.

There seemed to be synchronicity of things 'going wrong', which turned out to be right for him. Was he assisted in this?

This right/wrong pattern was deliberately created by his own higher energies, so that he could identify them and experience their impact. Had they not been so very obvious, he might have dismissed the entire episode as a painful yet uneventful one. He has a tendency to block things, and to move over them without examination. Currently he is in appreciation of the events and their teachings.

After the event took place, a couple of my friends and I went to the Taj and photographed the place, and there were a million orbs still present there. The energies still seem very heavy. Can you speak of this please?

The Taj and the Trident, as Corporations, both chose these events to destroy old patterns, belief structures and thought processes; and to completely re-evaluate their financial strategy, their business strategy, their perspective of hospitality and, most importantly, their greed and corruption.

In this, the Taj Corporation has failed miserably; but the Trident has awakened, to an extent. The Taj Corporation has failed miserably and, in all likelihood, will create another event; perhaps another form of a shake-up, to once again re-evaluate self.

Orbs can be many things, dear friend. Some of these are the energies of souls who have not yet moved on; others are energy portals being offered to the Corporation for its growth and evolution; yet others are inter-dimensional wormholes, allowing the corporation to link with other alternative aspects of self; and so on.

How does this tie into the current worldwide financial upheavals?

The initial market crash was to awaken the world as a whole, and to urge all to understand the inflow/outflow of money and goods. People were offered the opportunity to work towards the balance between personal abundance and worldwide abundance, and to create a rise in the standard of living for all.

Since most did not learn their lesson, this time around, people and individual corporations are being offered the opportunity to work at a micro level very specifically, while naturally taking the bigger picture into account as well. Each individual, each company, and each household now has to do this.

Be aware that water movements are likely to now take place, for worldwide cleansing and emotional re-evaluation. When you hear of them, or experience them, please do not attempt to hold them back. Instead, facilitate them.

There are major shifts taking place in Australia and New Zealand. What is this all about?

In the past, when shifts of all kinds took place (be they emotional, physical or financial ones) it was possible to chart the probability of where and when they would take place.

Now, planet Earth and the human race are deciding this 'in the moment of the now'. Therefore even we, as Masters, are unable to offer you anything other than a 'probability'.

There is a new comet coming towards Earth: what is it going to do for the planet and her astrological alignment?

When a comet follows its trajectory, it carries within self a great intensity of energies, which are needed to be transported from its point of origin to its final destination.

Look at this from an earthly perspective: sometimes you need medication like a pill, which spreads its effects throughout the body; and at other times you need an operation, which directly targets a certain area.

Planet Earth generally absorbs energy in a gentle way, but at times she may need a specific dose of high-intensity energies, which she may invite through a comet.

Of course any projectile body, such as a comet or a meteorite, does leave an energy trail behind itself, but its final destination is the most important. The trail, however, serves to carve, in space, new energetic pathways that are required for evolution.

We will speak of this comet later: but for now, let us say that it will most certainly alter the human consciousness in desired ways.

You spoke of water shifts for planet Earth. Water, as we know, is associated with emotions. So if we change our emotional bodies by working on self, can we avert these external water movements?

Could you? Yes indeed. If emotional balance and stability was achieved by at least 51% of those in an area, and by the area itself, then that would automatically ensure that a water shift would not take place there.

A tsunami, a torrential downpour, or even a ocean current shift automatically affects the water in your bodies. You already know that you are mainly composed of water. This shift brings up emotional issues that you have suppressed, and urges you to deal with them.

So do your emotional blockages create the external tsunami, or does the tsunami help you shift your emotional blockages? The chicken and the egg syndrome! Yet neither comes first: both work in perfect harmony together.

BLESSINGS, JOY, LOVE, AND LIGHT FROM THOSE ASPECTS OF THE SOHRAB THAT ARE THE MEHER BABA.
