THE ENERGIES OF 2012 -HOW THEY AFFECT:
ADULTS
CONTINENTS CITIES BUSINESSES

Trance Channeling begins

 Let us continue our series: the energies of 2012, as they impact different groups of people. We will now move into the area of adults; but today, we will take you a slightly different route. Let us go from the macro to the micro, by looking at these energies in relation to continents, then cities, then aspects within a city, such as public spaces, businesses, households.

Just as you have 'soul music', so does a continent. This soul music embodies its core, the very foundations upon which it rests. This is now being upgraded with the energies of 2012.

The soul song of the United States, for example, contains, at its very core, the energies of the original inhabitants: the Red Indians. Its music is based on deep spirituality, oneness with nature and the Universe, and an inherent understanding of harmony and balance.

The soul song was then modified with the arrival of the immigrants, who contributed to this solid foundation their energies of endeavor, grit, determination, fortitude, and optimism: in short, the pioneering spirit.

In recent years, unfortunately, the soul song has been contaminated by the energies of greed, arrogance, one-upmanship, selfishness, insularity and materialism.

The continent now desires to use the energies of 2012 to rectify this: it wishes to retain its original music; and to add to it the musical energies of resource-management, human values, equitable sharing and profit distribution, a world-view, and so on.

To do this, planet Earth is beginning to release energies from her core center; energies that will actually change the vibration of soil of the continent of America. This will, in turn, affect the pH balance, the crop growth and cycles. Certain areas will turn fallow; others rich. Crops grown in one place may no longer grow there at all. Farmers will have to reacquaint themselves with their original pioneering spirit, and reinvent their systems.

This vibrational change will also affect the cities, and all the structures built in the urban areas. Acidic soil energies, for example, will most certainly permeate the walls of skyscrapers. This will change the vibration of the offices and residences in them; which, in turn, will affect all those they house.

The people there are already experiencing mood swings, and are fast learning to re-examine their ideology, belief systems, morals, ethics, thought patterns, and so on.

At the same time, this particular continent is also attracting to self new and unexplored Universal rays, which will combine with the Earth-generated energies, to affect the change.

The human population will feel the effects the most; as they are far more resistant to new energies than are animals or plants.

These energies offer every American the opportunity to re-look at his life and his lifestyle. They will affect every aspect of their lives: physical, mental, emotional and spiritual. New and exciting forms of hybrid art, literature and music are likely to arise.

Rapid shifts are also going to take place in the areas of business, commerce and finance. Old and established companies will fold up, new and unexpected mergers will take place, and individuals may find themselves venturing into jobs outside their areas of expertise.

What about America's "Declaration of Independence"? Does this have any bearing on what is currently happening?

Any country's charter is the foundation upon which its energies evolve. When any country moves away from its cornerstone rules, it begins to flounder. It then has two choices: to either bring itself back on track; or to shatter its charter, and build one afresh. In either case, it can always upgrade its aims and aspirations.

America does not wish to shatter its charter; it wishes to return to its roots, and to simultaneously add new and exciting attributes to them.

What will happen to the Red Indians?

The energetic influence of the Red Indians is on the rise. A new balance has to be achieved, after the years' of suppression and marginalization that they have experienced.

Their energies are rising, phoenix-like, to once again permeate society. We are not speaking of their physical, but of their energetic, rise in society. This is not being done out of retaliation, but from the fullness of self. These energies will slowly inter-mingle with the existing ones, offering the appropriate energetic transfusion.

Could you speak to us of Australia?

 Australia is a combination of Aboriginal energy, coupled with that of its later settlers. Aboriginal energy is very earth-connected; the initial settlers brought with them 'convict' energy, and this mutated into a healthy, spirited, endeavor-based, carefree union of the two. During 2012, the two intermingled energies desire to explore energetic refinement.

Though, quite obviously, the current Australian is as honest and law-abiding as any average world citizen, there is a cellular memory of the past that carries forward. This lies dormant in most citizens; and it is this genetic propensity that they wish to refine. They wish to move towards being a magnificent super-power. They truly wish to re-create self, their perception of self, and their self-image.

Once again, you will find new and exciting artistic ventures arising from this continent. At the same time, the inhabitants will start moving from a casual, 'rough and ready' attitude, towards a more introspective one.

These changes do not, naturally, occur overnight; pockets within the continent will move quicker than others.

Let us now examine Europe. What is happening there right now?

(Group members cite the financial and political chaos in that region)

Correct. Europe is working rather differently to both America and Australia, which are harnessing both Earth and Universal energies to effect the changes within self.

Europe has 'called upon' the energies of all lightworkers and spiritualists, worldwide, for support and guidance.

At a higher conscious level, you aid in Europe's evolution all the time. At a conscious level, every time you hear or read of Europe, or even watch a film in which it is depicted, you are triggering off an energetic connection with the continent, through which you offer it your guidance and support.

Unlike America, which is physically changing its pH balance; Europe is changing its energetic components. Every single part of Europe, be it a natural body of water, a monument or a person, is doing precisely this. This also means that energies will greatly differ, person to person, and place to place. Two adjacent buildings could contain completely different energies. As could two family members.

All of Europe is deeply intertwined with its historical and family roots. They are now learning, at a very rapid pace, to assimilate these aspects of self. Many experience contrary emotions: for example, an average European may take great pride in his family and musical heritage; but simultaneously may be greatly ashamed of his country's past 'misdeeds'.

Many Germans, even today, hold great shame in their cellular structure for the Nazi regime. This brings with it the energies of shame, guilt, over-responsibility, defiance, anger, fear, regret and so on.

They need to learn to assimilate both sides of the coin: the pride and the shame, and to be able to acknowledge both aspects with understanding, equanimity and balance.

It is a deeply cleansing time for Europe: most will experience emotional upheavals and trauma, and will also experience new and delightful 'highs'. Emotions will run high. Remember this, specifically if you visit this region during this year, as you will temporarily be influenced by this. If you are, then embrace and assimilate the issues that arise while you are visiting this continent.

What happens if we are living in India, but of European descent? My grandparents were Portuguese.

 You will then experience a combined influence of your ancestry and your current country. In the perfect proportion to that which is necessary for your personal evolution.

Great Britain has lost its 'guiding light' leadership spirit. This is its greatest regret, but it also understands it cannot reclaim this in the old way, that of colonization.

Please note that there is a difference between America's pioneering spirit, and GB's guiding light spirit. A guiding light is one that shines forth like a beacon, in the exuberance of self. It is the greatest form of self-declaration, as it does not 'want anything' from anyone: it simply shines forth in the joy of self-expression.

GB is working very slowly towards this. Fire is likely to play an important role in its current evolution: it will use this to move from disorder to order. Fire includes the use of explosives, gun-fire, and physical fire. It also includes Illumination of the Soul.

Surely Lady Diana was a symbol of 'fire'?

 Indeed she was. Fire can both burn and illuminate. It always destroys to create. Her very essence ignited the world, and scorched the world. She was, most certainly, a soul with a fiery mission.

Africa: This landmass is working at connecting with its own natural resources, and simultaneously with Universal friends from other planets.

Vast amounts of natural resources are likely to be discovered over the course of the year: new oil fields and minerals, to name but two. At the same time, there will now be vast amounts of UFO sightings in and around Africa.

A tremendous shake-up is to be expected in their financial, political and economic arenas. Corruption has to now be rooted out. Faulty systems unearthed and exposed.

All the inhabitants have a genetic connection to the land, and to its natural resources. This they wish to re-activate and enhance. Spirituality will also undergo a great resurgence here.

Now let us speak of India – 2012 is a very interesting year for this continent. India has called upon the aid of many of its past citizens, great souls, and Universal friends, to help it spiritually. This is to come through an awakening of the core of the cells of its inhabitants; to rekindle the inherent spirituality that lies, deep within.

It now wishes to tackle its core issue: separation.

The average person in your country may or may not be a ‘practicing spiritualist’, but he does wish to experience this, not esoterically, but practically, in his day-to-day life.

He will now create situations that offer him the opportunity to put this into practice. Old, rigid beliefs and practices will most certainly be brought up for reviewal. Even the average person will now begin to question himself, his lifestyle, his thoughts and beliefs, and so on. Even the most resistant and blocked will now be forced to look at self anew.

The energies of 2012 are going to offer India a ‘no-tolerance’ policy: assimilate the issues that arise, or crack. So deal with them as they come up: the moment you do, the energies will instantly assist you. This is the only country that has chosen this extreme measure.

Is this effect for India, Pakistan and Bangladesh?

 Yes.

You have spoken of India, but we are part of Asia. Does this apply to Asia as a whole?

 India is a part of Asia, and will therefore also be influenced by its choices as well. Though India is working specifically on its root issue, “separation”; Asia as a whole is working on “lack of self worth”. This will also spill over into India.
