THE VOID
YOUR PROTOTYPE VOID
ENERGY RHYTHMS

Trance Channeling begins

 Welcome!

Today, on this multicolored, vibrant energetic day of Holi, let us paradoxically speak of what appears to be exactly the opposite: the void, the shunia, the circle, the zero, the sphere.

You have a mistaken impression that deep space is a void, that a black hole is a void: this is not at all the case. However, within deep space, there is an area that is truly 'the void'.

To better understand this concept, let us start by examining a micro-aspect of the void: you.

Between each breath that you take, in or out, there is an infinitesimal micro-nano-second in which there is no thought, no sound, no feeling, no emotion, no motion, no matter, and no anti-matter: there is no 'you'. At this point, you cease to exist, completely and totally, in matter and in spirit. And then, in the next instant, you re-create yourself and return to differing levels of existence.

As above, so below. If this takes place for you, it must take place for every other aspect of the Universe as well. Planet Earth also 'breathes', and does precisely the same between her breaths. Her rhythms also cease to exist for an infinitesimal moment, and then she, too, re-creates self anew in the next instant.

Now, not all aspects of the Universe enter the void at precisely the same moment: while some do, others are in existence: in this manner, the Universe never loses touch with itself.

It is this Universal rhythm of aspects of self 'disappearing' and then re-creating self that generates the sound of the OM.

Now, you are well aware that 'you' are comprised of past, present, and future existences, as well as parallel and simultaneous aspects of self. All follow this pattern, but not all enter the void at the same instant. If they did, your essence would be forever lost. So aspects of self 'take turns' to do this.

Imagine all your 'selves' to be a string of beautiful, multi-colored blinking lights. These lights would then take on an ever-changing rhythm of blinking in different sequences. As your aspects evolve, the rhythm would speed up, but the string would still blink: in more and more complicated patterns, sequences and rhythms.

Now, your next question will be: "If all our existences are occurring simultaneously, then how can there be a 'sequence', which implies linear time?"

This is the 'Pandora's box' of the Universe: within linear time exists simultaneous time, and within that lies linear time, and within that, simultaneous time, and so on. Both aspects must be embraced and understood, to better understand the Universe.

Now, let us introduce you to yet another aspect of self, which you have not taken into account: your prototype void.

You have accepted and understood the existence of various aspects of past, present, future and simultaneous selves. Yet there is another aspect of self that we wish to reveal to you today. This could be viewed as an 'outline of self', with nothing in it. Your prototype void.

This is an aspect of you without an official 'existence'. Imagine this to be a blank canvas, an empty hole, or a cut-out of you. This obviously has no sex, shape, energy or even existence.

Each entity has only one such prototype void, which serves all its aspects and incarnations. Every aspect of the entity uses this to enter the void, moment to moment, in a certain rhythmic sequence.

Each time you enter the void, and re-create an aspect of self, you grow. Each time you grow, every aspect of self grows. Every time you return, you introduce into self, new sacred geometry.

Your prototype void is the only aspect of self that can fully touch the Godhead. It is, in fact, your passageway to All that Is.

However 'realized and evolved' you are on Planet Earth, you are still incapable of merging completely and totally with the Godhead. Yet you need to be able to access this reservoir to re-create self, moment to moment. You do this through your prototype void.

So this is our 'hotline to God'?

Indeed it is! Differing aspects of self, in different incarnations, have differing levels of connection permissible to self. Each uses the prototype void to access what is perfection for self.

Why do we choose earthly incarnations, that often take us backwards?

That has been explained in the past, dear friend, but we will explain it in brief for your benefit. There is only one single objective of every aspect of the universe, be it an alien, a planet or a star, and that is to grow, expand and evolve.

No one and nothing desires to energetically regress. And nothing can really regress. From a limited earthly perspective, you may decide that a certain person is 'not learning his lessons' and is 'moving backwards', but that is not possible. He is simply moving forward in a trajectory that you cannot identify or comprehend.

Having said that, the speed at which a person progresses is dependent on his drive, desire and will. And yes, there may be moments where he stagnates, but that is his choice.

I know that, but I still don't understand why we put ourselves through these various experiences. Surely we can simply experience them at a higher level?

Experience is necessary for assimilation. You can see a beautiful mountain in a film, but until you have climbed it yourself, you cannot completely experience it and assimilate all that it has to offer. Souls crave experience of differing forms; not just earthly experiences. Each society and each aspect of the Universe has varied, exciting and differing experiences to offer you. And through this you expand and grow.

So, in simple language, "God" is experiencing himself through and as us!

Can you explain the difference between the higher soul and the prototype void?

Your higher soul contains energy, matter and anti-matter, experience, knowledge, wisdom, awareness, and consciousness. Your prototype void contains none of this. It is devoid of everything, including consciousness. Its very 'nothingness' makes it so magnificent.

You attempt, during deep meditation, to touch the void. You rarely, but occasionally, do so. At that infinitesimal moment, you are beyond your body, beyond consciousness, and beyond any kind of images or sensations. You 'are not'. You are never permitted, by self, to remain here longer than a micro-nano-second. If you did, you would never return, and would cease to exist.

For those few who do experience deep meditation for any extended period of time, what happens is this: they touch the void between breaths, and then return to a very high level of self, wherein they experience bliss. The very sensation of bliss means that they are out of the void. The words 'sensation' or 'experience' imply consciousness.

Similarly, those who say they have experienced 'nothingness' are simply expression their conceptualized conscious recollection of the nothingness that they have touched. In the void, there is nothing, and therefore, everything. But paradoxically, to truly experience everything/nothing, you can have no sensation of it.

Your various existences are like a string of pearls, each with a tiny knot between them. The knots denote your moments in the void, and the next instant you are the subsequent pearl.

Dear friends, today we are simply introducing you to an aspect that exists beyond the God Particle, beyond Sacred Geometry, beyond your concept of creation. We are taking you to the origin of creation.

If the void exists for everything, then how can we have individual prototype voids?

■ We used a linear explanation to help you understand this: your prototype voids are your individual passageways to The Void. The very concept of a passageway implies matter, shape and form: you need this at the 'entrance', but as you progress along it, it becomes nothingness. You could call this the pathway to God.

So this is not a wormhole?

■ In general, a wormhole is an energy passageway, taking you to different dimensions and realities. This could be considered the supreme wormhole.

What actually happens to us, every time we enter the void?

■ Between breaths, when you enter the void, you become nothing. But simultaneously, millions of other Universal aspects are also entering the void at the same micro-nano-second. In that instant, all become nothing, and therefore all become one.

Let us take a simplistic example. Let us assume that you enter the void at the same instant as a Universal friend, and a single leaf. In the experience of nothingness, and everything, when you then return to your incarnation, you integrate into that self every aspect of the Universal friend and the leaf. You now know what it is to be both of them.

In this manner, you experience the entire universe. And you integrate, into self, every material and conscious aspect of the Universe. This is the process that creates 'collective consciousness'.

Are you all enjoying today's physics lesson? (All laugh)

There are times when, during meditation, we experience a tremendous rise of consciousness. We also experience a sense of bliss. Are we, at that time, 'in the tunnel' towards the void?

■ If there is any kind of experience, then you are in the early stages of the tunnel. Beyond that is non-consciousness, non-experience.

If your visual frequency was very high, you would actually 'see' every person in this room vanish, and then reappear, with every in-out breath. And you would then also be able to see and sense the subtle, yet substantial, changes that they bring to self, moment to moment.

Each person brings back elements that they have just non-experienced. This could be considered random chaos. Slowly you bring a pattern, a structure to these 'random' mergers. An ever-changing pattern is created by you, which is unique to you, and is shared by no one or nothing else in the Universe. Can you now begin to see the divinity within self emerging?

So it is basically an assimilation of one's experiences and energies that become nothingness, because they finally have to be recycled back into the Universe. The next instant of nothingness then gives one 'space' to re-create self afresh?

■ Now you are beginning to understand that, through this process, nothing that has taken place prior to 'the now' really has any hold on you!

The reason that traumatic childhood events still seem to follow you through life is because, each moment you re-create yourselves with your earthly mentality, you re-assemble yourself the way you thought you were, the previous second.

In actual fact, any event that has taken place even a second before your visit to the void really has no bearing on your next re-assembly of self. You could choose to return with no pain or trauma whatsoever.

When, for instance, you are physically injured, you keep re-creating the pain, moment to moment, to the degree you think you have it; hence the wound keeps hurting you. This is because of the 'training' your earthly mind has, wherein you equate pain with injury.

Those who have a mastery of the void could actually be stabbed in the heart, and return the next moment, physically whole, complete and pain-free. You could have terminal cancer, and be cancer-free the next instant.

This is the available magnitude of energetic re-creation available to the human race, at this moment of the now.

Have you not heard of energetically advanced souls, like your swamis and gurus, who can spontaneously manifest ash from their palms? Who can instantly cure themselves and others of diseases? Who can choose to shed the physical body, and leave behind no remains?

Start to choose to explore the void in a more intensified manner. Attempt to touch it for a micro-second longer than before. Work at extending your visits to the tunnel. You, too, can develop these abilities.

What of our different incarnations? How do they visit the void?

 An aspect of self that is highly advanced, and exists in a non-physical form of very high vibration, will be able to consciously, and of choice, visit the void more frequently, and for a marginally longer time period. But that aspect of self must also leave it 'before too long', or it would cease to exist, and then, so would you.

Perhaps now you can begin to understand why your scriptures describe your earthly life as 'maya', an illusion. It is the illusion that you create, moment to moment, each time you return from the void, and is dependent on your belief of what self should be, each time.

Each time you return, you believe that you are older, or diseased, or frailer; and so you create that illusion, and inhabit it. You believe that you are bound by past issues and childhood trauma, and so it is.

Let us once again cite the example of your energetically advanced souls on earth. You have all heard of those who can 'miraculously walk through walls'. What really happens is this: with their mastery of the void, they simply retract into it for a moment, and re-create themselves on the other side of the wall. But from your perception, they have 'walked through it'.

Similarly, some (but not all) of the 'vanishing' incidents that occur in the Bermuda Triangle, do so because the void has been touched for an accidentally extended period.

Other reasons for the mysterious disappearances, which have been discussed before, are surges through energy vortexes, rifts in the time-space continuum, and accidental 'slippages' into alternate dimensions and realities.

Some, however, have had the opportunity through the powerful energies of the Bermuda Triangle, been propelled into the void, and have remained there for an extended period of time. They have succumbed to its fascination. The experience of non-experience, of nothingness, is the ultimate Universal orgasm.

Is the void what great Masters like Buddha and Mohammed have been able to touch at will?

 All evolved souls understand the void to a greater degree than others: they can touch it at will, responsibly, and retain a greater degree of understanding of it, in their conscious existence.

Earth is currently experience a great change in her magnetic, and also we are being bombarded with solar flares from the Sun. Is all of this propelling us towards experiencing the void?

Yes, it is. Each being repeatedly experiences the void in a different manner. Just as you can read the same book at different points in your life, and experience it differently the second time around, so is it with the void.

When a planetary body like Earth experiences the void, moment to moment, she has an even greater responsibility that you do; she has to ensure that her moment-to-moment re-creation benefits self and all her inhabitants, to the appropriate degree.

The timing of all aspects has to be perfect: even though both you and the sun experience the void, you cannot be on earth for the complete micro-nano-second that he is in the void. If that was so, you would experience no-sun on earth, and you would cease to exist. So a rhythm is established, wherein you overlap your visit with his.

In a similar manner, you have to 'time' your visits to the void, taking into account all the various planets that affect you, known and unknown. This is a branch of Universal astrology not understood on Earth, which could be termed "Energy Rhythms".

These energy rhythms are infinitely complex. They keep you functioning as an individual, as a family member, as a member of society in your country, as a member of planet earth, as a member of the solar system, and so on.

Similarly, at your point of both birth and death, you time it rhythmically with the appropriate planetary bodies and their entrance into/re-creation from the void.

When you move from matter to spirit, for example, you do not wish to 'cease to exist'; but you do wish to cease to exist as a human being, and move smoothly back to the embrace of your spirit self. Your energetic 'clock' has to be exactly on time!

There have been rare cases when, due to mis-timing, a soul has entered the void permanently, and has then totally ceased to exist.

But why is it an error?

Yes, in the grander scheme of things there can be no error, but this may not have been when the soul actually wished to return fully to the source. Even when this happens, there is a new celestial re-birthing: from this comes a totally new soul, a brand new Universal baby!

Do feelings of déjà vu arise when two souls are in the void together?

They can, but that is not the only reason. In general, you experience déjà vu when your psychic faculties are flowing more strongly than they normally do. The moment this happens, you open yourself to energies beyond your normal earthly capacity, and undergo a multiplicity of experience.

Let us look at this practically: you have all heard of people who visit a foreign country for the first time, and find everything there 'familiar': the roads, the language, the landscape.

At this moment, the person is opening self to extended aspects of self: himself in his current existence, and simultaneously in another one. You are not just 'recalling' them; you are experiencing both together. But in general, even if this happens, you cannot keep the 'window open' for very long.
