ANTI-MATTER EXPERIMENTATION ON EARTH
'THE SOUP OF THE CREATOR'

Trance Channeling begins

 We offer you a challenge today. Though your chanting of the OMs was extremely discordant (all laugh), you still managed to create an appropriate energetic vibration to facilitate the energy channeling through him (Sohrab).

For today's session, he needs to be able to contain, in a different dimension of self, anti-matter.

Please chant OM again, inwardly and silently. Attempt to create, within self, a non-vibrational OM. We are aware that to you, this sounds paradoxical, yet it is possible. In doing this, attempt to touch your inner stillness.

If you can generate the appropriate non-vibration, the meeting will take a particular course. If you cannot, it will simply take another course. Please begin now.

(The group does so)

Thank you. You may now return to your normal state of vibration.

Let us explain what you have created and then we will ask you further questions. Now obviously, for this channeling to continue, vibration must be used. He must use his voice box, his vocabulary, his physical movement and resonance. However, he is now simultaneously holding, within self, a temporary field of anti-matter.

This cannot be allowed to inter-mingle with his energetic structure, as an explosion would then take place. It is therefore in a different energetic dimension, and yet it cocoons him.

Can you describe what happened to you when you chanted the non-OM?

Emptiness, a void.

Was there any kind of emotion involved in it?

Nothing but blankness.

You are correct. Emotion itself is a vibration. Even emptiness and blankness contain vibration, but they are acceptable descriptions of what you non-experienced. A state of no-thing.

Now, as you were generating it, naturally there is a part of you that continues to vibrate and exist as a human. Simultaneously, you were generating a non-field of energy around self. How did it feel to hold the two, together?

(Various group members answer)

Effervescence.

Light.

Centered.

Still.

Well done! All humans are going to be experimenting with this during 2012. You are, consciously or unconsciously, going to be experimenting with anti-matter, within and around your bodies. Though you have all 'flirted' with this in the past, you are now going to be working with it, in a more focused manner. As are all the kingdoms of planet Earth.

So what will this do to you and for you?

 Initially, when you generate a non-energy field around your customary energetic field, it urges your own energies to start bubbling up and mutating at a very rapid rate.

As your energetic particles vibrate at a higher rate, they then begin to split, creating space within themselves, which is then filled by anti-matter. Slowly, you begin to be filled by high-vibrational matter and more and more anti-matter, which affects even these particles all over again, and they begin to split and further this process. In effect, you are creating millions of 'black holes' within self.

It is said that between this energy and non-energy is 'the soup of the Creator': love.

 You are quite correct. Let us further clarify this. Love permeates the entire Universe, and is, indeed, the core aspect of Planet Earth. You are quite aware of how all on Earth learn from experiencing degrees of non-love, to love in its fullest force.

Now, not all societies around the Universe use love as their core: it most certainly will be part of their 'soup', but some base their growth and evolution on other aspects, such as knowledge, or wisdom. For you, knowledge and wisdom comes through love; for them it is the other way around.

Now, the 'soup of the creator' contains both matter and anti-matter. Earth uses love as the base ingredient, and then adds to it knowledge, wisdom, awareness, magnification of self, and so on.

By choosing to now work with a combination of matter and anti-matter, you are moving from a basic to a gourmet soup. (all laugh)

As these ingredients come into your structure, they help you to hold matter and anti-matter together, in a combination unique to you. This will help you to consciously start re-creating your lives. Not just this life, but all your parallel and simultaneous existences.

2012 is 'the end of the world' as you knew it; and is the simultaneous birthing of a new world, and a new self. The Human consciousness has decided to re-create self, anew.

As you familiarize yourselves with this process of containing both matter and anti-matter, you will find that past traumas do not 'hold' you anymore.

This is truly a year of birthing: some of you are 30-year old babies, and some 90-year old ones; but you are all still wonderful babies, arising from the ashes of your past and living life anew.

Those who are planning on exiting shortly (regardless of their age) will use this birthing process to propel themselves forward, at a very rapid rate, when they return to the spirit realm. Their past, repetitive patterns and 'karma' will be speedily assimilated, becoming a non-issue, and they will be able to proceed in their future growth very rapidly.

Those who choose to remain on Earth for the next few decades have chosen to undergo this re-birthing process at a relative mid-point in their earthly lives for the specific purpose of now re-examining all past issues and ties from a new and a very expanded viewpoint. This group wishes to still work with them here, in a third-dimensional existence, but from a new perspective. This could be likened to a novelist who has constantly experienced writers block, and now abandons his old novel and starts 'flowing' with a new one.

Those who are children and intend to live a long and full life on earth will use these energies to enlighten self and all others around them.

Do you not already see this in your young children? The 'hold of the past', to them, is almost meaningless. They may listen to you, but they will not do what does not 'fit' with them. For the most part, they do not need your approval or validation; they validate themselves.

They are not particularly interested in the past, but they are vitally excited by the prospects of the future. They will be much less interested in the subject of history, as they will be in cutting-edge, unexplored science and technology. They are seekers and searchers. They know no limits. They are not bound by society's rules, regulations and moral codes. They will discover their own.

If you constantly dwell in the past, your children will come along and prod you, urging you not to 'waste your time', but to look, instead, to the future. They will constantly remind you of the inner freedom you seek.

Listen to your children. Learn from them.

Today's teenagers, and those in their 20s, are 'energy bridges'. They contain aspects of the children, and aspects that you hold. They vacillate between total freedom and relative restriction; and being bridges, they help you assimilate energetic aspects of the children that you wish to imbibe.

What about the souls who have already moved into the spirit realm before 2012?

 Those in the spirit realm who wish to avail themselves of the energies of 2012 on earth are simply choosing to re-visit the planet. Many currently surround it, and are inter-mingling with these energies in different ways.

Some, by virtue of 'being here', receive these energies directly. Many, even in spirit, are still energetically blocked, and wish to use these energies much like you do.

You may recall that we have repeatedly told you that, during 2011 and 2012, the veils between the physical and spirit realms are very thin. This way, your spirit friends can also benefit from earth's growth, and your evolution. Many are working just as furiously as you are, to assimilate issues and move forward.

Many are therefore 'piggy-backing' on your growth; by attaching themselves to you (with your higher soul permission, of course) you can both work out and assimilate issues together.

Most of you act as 'temporary hosts' to such energetic souls. A contract is formed between you (just as it is between a future mother and the soul wishing to come through her), and you work together.

Contracts of this kind would only be formed if you have almost identical current blocks, and issues to assimilate. There is no need for any numerical limit: you can work as easily with one 'guest', as you can with one hundred.

(Smiling) Imagine yourselves to be holding a bunch of helium balloons on strings: the balloons are your temporary guests, and you anchor their strings.

Through this process, all benefit. This is the advantage of true 'team work': you can now work with a multiplicity of thoughts, ideas and energies; and you now all grow so much faster. You also have a 'support system'; you can figuratively 'cry on each others' shoulders, and also help any one member who is 'down'. You are all generous hosts: each one of you has chosen to work with many such souls.

Do these souls have to be part of our old 'soul family'?

■ No, they are not necessarily souls with whom you have interacted, either on earth or in other existences. But they have to be souls with common issues. Through this, you form a new bonding with them, and they instantly become part of your new soul family!

Most of you are energetically sensitive. You will now begin to sense many, many beings around you at all times: in your homes, in your bedroom and on the street. Please, please do not fear them. These are your joyous new soul family members; friends at your invitation. Choose to acknowledge them, welcome them and 'get to know' them.

If they all have the same issues as we do, won't that reinforce the issue?

■ On earth, when you band together with others in groups like AA, it generally serves you well; but it can also, at times, emphasize the issue.

It does not work that way with a spirit group. Your 'helium balloons' are vital, active, and anxious to evolve. They do not resist growth the way you do on earth. They only spur you on in the process.

We are now being introduced to so many opportunities for self-growth: the Void, Shangri-La, and now this. Yet so many seem to be making the same mistakes, over and over again....

Starting 2012, Planet earth has removed all her 'safety nets'. Upto now, you could be irresponsible trapeze artists, flinging yourselves around with thoughtless abandon, and enjoying the temporary pleasures of greed, corruption and irresponsibility. You did this, knowing that if you fell, you would be gently cushioned by the safety net beneath.

Now this has been removed. If you act irresponsibly, moving away from your chosen life-path, you will now crash.

Earth herself has, in the past, allowed you a certain amount of freedom of expression. She has allowed you to plunder and loot her, to over-mine her resources, and to play the role of the wild child. When you went too far, she reigned you in.

Not so any more. If you now choose to drain her of oil, she will permit it, and your landmasses will collapse. If you continue to pollute her waters, all the fish will die and you will face severe food and water shortages. Her ecological imbalances will then eventually kill you.

She now chooses to practice tough love. Learn on your own, through experience, without constant parental warning and guidance.

Isn't this heartless?

 There comes a point in every parent's life when she has to release her child. Don't you do the same? You can care for your child, and guide him, and nurture him while he is growing up. But what happens when he goes off to college, abroad?

Can you then 'check up' on him every instant? Stop him from making his mistakes? There has to come a time when you release the child, and let him live his own life. He has choices: he may become a multiple murderer, or the President of a country. His choice, not yours.

This does not make Mother Earth heartless; it makes her even more loving and caring. She is willing to release her loved ones...are you?

Of course, in the grander scheme of things, does it really matter if you are on earth or in spirit? These are just two states of being: your growth proceeds, regardless. So even if planet Earth permits you to exit, or permits mass exits; souls still continue to evolve.

Of course this does not mean that you can disregard your current incarnation, or treat it as 'trivial'. You have specifically chosen it for a purpose.

If you pass over in or after 2012 in a state of misalignment with your chosen life course, those resonances will take you eons to correct. That is why it is now critical for you to ask self "Am I in alignment with self? Am I on the path that I want to be on? Am I accomplishing what self desires?"

If not, you now have the power to shift your life course at will: make it so! You are, after all, creating moment-to-moment. This creation must now be perfection.

(Pointing to D) You earlier spoke of the energetic reversal of the poles, and of your understanding of the northern hemisphere being predominantly masculine, and the southern hemisphere feminine. You are correct to a degree.

These energies are now beginning to intermingle and merge. Masculine and feminine cannot actually merge, as you understand the word; but they can inter-twine.

The planet is now going to be covered with masculine energies, over which it will wear a mantle of feminine energies. Now, the feminine energies will be the overseer, and keep the masculine energies on track, and in check.
