DIVINE TIMING

DIVINE DISPENSATION

(The discussion, prior to the meeting, was about "Owing Your Mastery", being pro-active in one's life, and taking steps towards being the best one could be, in any and every chosen field.)

We have only this to add to your discussion. 2018 is a magic carpet ride. Don't let your carpet stay on the ground. Fly! Soar! Explore the Universe.

Last week we touched upon the concept of Divine Timing and stated that it was of paramount importance this year. We would like to explain this more fully, as your concept of this is a trifle limited.

You still see this as relating exclusively to timing; but in actual fact, it requires synergy between time, space and dimension.

Let's look at this with a simple example. A person is leaving on a trip, and somehow gets delayed. Then a loved one at home suddenly passes away. The person is now grateful that divine timing kept him at home, to be able to attend the funeral and see to all the necessary rites.

Yes, this is an example of divine timing; but one viewed at a very superficial level. It's also easy to be in gratitude to divine timing when the event that occurs pleases you; but it's not so easy when it doesn't.

Now let's examine this example more closely. You have been deliberately 'kept back' and your loved one has passed away. But divine timing takes into account not just two individuals in a single incarnation; but all the various aspects of these two individuals in multiple timelines, dimensions and existences.

The person who was passing away may have 5 different aspect of himself, in concurrent and simultaneous lifetimes; ones that all want to exit at the same time so that they can unite in spirit and form an energetic hub.

Each one has to take into account the needs of the others. One may be ready to cross over immediately, another three may need a few more weeks, and the last one may need five more months. Now, they begin to 'conference' at a soul level, to discuss this issue and work towards an acceptable compromise.

The last one may say, "I will attempt to finish that which I need for my growth in this existence in a shorter time-span; perhaps in a couple of months." The other aspects could then say, "OK, we will delay our departure to meet you at that point in time, so that we can all exit and merge into glorious oneness."

How often do you, on earth, look at a person and wonder why he or she isn't passing over? You complain that God is being cruel and letting him endlessly suffer, instead of taking him away. But his higher soul, in conjunction with divine timing, decrees that the wait is necessary.

Souls that have conferenced with other aspects of the self and choose to extend their lifespan also give themselves tremendous benefits. Some use it as an extended course of study for the self. Others offer it as a gift to their loved ones: this could benefit their growth and evolutionary processes. Yet others silently offer energies to their extended family and Planet Earth herself. And so on.

Let's return to the example at hand. Five aspects of the self have compromised, waited a couple of months, and are now all ready to merge. At this point, the higher soul of all these five incarnated aspects now suggests, “Wait another month. A huge energetic vortex is about to open up in the Universe; one which will benefit you immeasurably. So I suggest that all five of you delay your departure another month, so that you can enter the spirit realm through this vortex. If you do so, your spirit growth will be catapulted forward.”

So, once again, they conference and decide to wait. And once again, from an earthly perspective, your loved one comes to death’s door, and suddenly revives. And let us assure you that the other aspects of ‘you’, in the other existences, also cannot see the bigger picture, and often feel forsaken.

Are you beginning to see a bigger picture? Divine timing has taken into account the needs of 5 aspects of the self, and also the arrival of a new energetic vortex. Divine timing goes beyond time; it must embrace time, space and dimension.

Now let’s extend this picture even further. Your energies are intertwined with all your loved ones. This includes your enemies. Energetically, they are your ‘near and dear’ ones; they have simply contracted to play the role of the villain in your earthly life, to further your growth and evolution.

The energetic growth of all these people is intertwined with yours. So you may even choose to extend your lifespan to serve what appears to be your greatest enemy, along with your loved ones.

This choice will naturally impact all your various aspects, in different timelines and existences. This will provoke them, in their realities, to search for a reason to extend their existences. They will find these.

So far, we have discussed divine timing based on inter-personal relationships. But it goes far beyond this. There are energetic frequencies in the Universe (and within you) that keep growing and evolving. And Divine Timing also factors in these frequencies.

These could be frequencies with which you desire to interact in your incarnated forms, or ones which you desire to absorb the moment you are 'reborn' into the spirit realm. Some choose to delay their departure in order to interact with upcoming, as yet uncreated, frequencies; others do not.

Let us illustrate this with a simple earthly parallel. You may realize that you can afford a short, inexpensive holiday in the near future; or a lengthier, more expensive one next year. The choice is yours. Some want instant gratification. Others prefer to save up and wait.

So you may be told, by the higher soul, that wonderful new frequencies are opening up for you; ones that will truly serve you if you wait a while. You factor this in, as well.

Divine Timing also takes into account alternative dimensions.

You know that there are many different dimensions of Planet Earth. There is, for example, this dimension of Earth; one in which you are all sitting here and listening to this discourse. You have your current physical features, personalities and thought processes. But there are also several other dimensions of earth; ones which contain differing 'you's.

Those dimensional aspects of the self may be of a different sex, have different features and different personalities. In one such dimension, you may be attending a meeting; but one which has nothing to do with spirituality. However, it is likely to be one that is simultaneously uplifting your frequencies.

Sometimes divine timing has to factor in what is happening to other 'you's. Strong emotions like trauma or elation, in this dimensional reality, also impact other dimensional realities of the self. Divine timing might urge you to wait for a rift to open up between two dimensional aspects of the self, so that you can exchange energies and learn from one another's experiences.

Divine timing, therefore, takes into account physical (linear) timing on Earth (this reality), the co-relation of timing between your concurrent and simultaneous existences, inter-dimensional timing, space, energies and the over-view of the Highest Aspect of you. Your light body.

The Light Body has such a wide perspective that it knows exactly how to co-ordinate all aspects of you, in all timelines and dimensions; taking into account all the various people in these varied existences with whom you interact. Millions of people are therefore taken into consideration when a simple event takes place in your lives.

Now try to understand why we urge you to work towards an outcome with your heart and soul; but simultaneously trust that the perfect outcome will take place, at the perfect time.

From your linear perspective, when you are working towards the conclusion of a court-case or the reparation/separation of a marriage or a new business venture, you must put in your highest endeavor, focus and passion; but simultaneously release the outcome, trusting that it will take place in divine timing. In short, this means placing full trust in the highest aspect of the self. This has nothing to do with “God’s will”; it has everything to do with the magnificence of the Y-O-U.

Questions?

(Silence)

(Smiling) Yes, we have confused all of you today. There really can't be any questions till you think about what we have just said and slowly digest it.

Let us now touch upon one more aspect: divine dispensation. Again, something often misunderstood. Most people see it as a God pardoning them for a misdemeanor and saying, “I forgive you. You are excused.”

Divine dispensation is an assessment made by your own higher frequencies, deciding where to ‘tighten the reins’ and where to be a little extra lenient; taking into account the overall effect it will have on every one of your simultaneous and concurrent aspects, in all timelines and dimensions.

Let’s give you a simplistic, earthly example. Don’t you do this as parents? You sometimes ‘give in’ to the willfulness of your child, and at other times you stand firm and say, “This is not acceptable”.

Assuming you are in balance, you make either assessment not just based on ‘the moment’, but by taking into account the overall personality, behavioural patterns, history and growth of your child.

Let’s now examine this from a ‘taboo’ perspective: that of suicide. In prior sessions we have mentioned that suicide is not a ‘sin’; but it is a choice you really don’t want to make.

In general, if you do so, you return to spirit in disarray. Thereafter, when you are relatively whole and complete, after much healing, you often to choose to come back to Earth and create traumatic situations all over again, to once again take yourself to the point of suicide. In doing so, you are hoping to learn to touch a fragment of your own power and ‘not do it’.

Now, in certain cases, when a person has repeatedly committed suicide over lifetimes, the highest aspect assesses that portion of the self that is trapped in this energetic loop of self-destruction and says, “Let me give this aspect of ME divine dispensation. Sitting for this ‘examination’ repeatedly is doing me no good. I keep failing. In fact, it’s doing me harm. So let me give this aspect divine dispensation. Let me urge this aspect not to take another Earthly incarnation; instead, let me urge it to touch its power in a completely different way.”

So this act of divine dispensation is self-given out of magnificence; but never to simply pamper or indulge the self. In this case, the highest aspect has also taken into account the repercussions of this repeated pattern of suicide on all the various incarnated aspects of the self.

If one aspect of the self goes woefully awry, and energetic spread takes place; one that contaminates other aspects of the self, in differing timelines and dimensions. And that may not be appropriate for overall soul-growth.

Now let us have your questions.

There have been cases in which two people attempt suicide together: one has survived and the other hasn't. Why would this happen?

The one who survives has actually touched a fragment of his power at the very last minute and has said "This is not for me." This person may have overdosed on pills and be physically unconscious; yet he has managed to touch a fragment of power, even in this unconscious state, and has made a shift. This will provoke the doctors to successfully pump out his stomach and help revive him. The other has not.

Many farmers, in the state of Maharashtra, have been known to commit suicide due to abject poverty and frustration. Aren't the authorities responsible for this?

We will not discuss the ethics of politicians today. However, these souls have chosen to incarnate as starving farmers to bring themselves to the point of suicide. They have the same mission: to touch their power and not do so.

The act of suicide comes from utter and total powerlessness; but do not confuse this with cowardice. It takes tremendous courage to be able to commit suicide. As a human being, you are programmed with the instinct to survive. It is your default mechanism; as it must be. It takes great courage to override this default mechanism.

Dear friends: each person sitting here in this room today needs to think about (at least) 5 aspects in your lives in which you doubt, or continue to doubt, divine timing.

THE ENERGIES OF ST. GERMAIN BLESS YOU.

(Sohrab shifts energies)

THE MEHER BABA BLESSES YOU.

He comes today to lead you through a small healing exercise: one necessary for all the names mentioned at the start of the meeting, for yourselves, for your loved ones, your family, your homes and your planet.

Take a moment and visualize magnificent pink-grey cosmic light bathing Planet Earth. This is actually happening, as we speak. Visualize it softly bathing all her kingdoms, all her aspects, and yourselves. Just open to this light. (Pause)

Take this light into your bodies. Really take it in. (Pause)

AND IT IS SO.

BLESSINGS FROM THE MEHER.

(Sohrab shifts energies)

A SPECIAL BLESSING FROM THE ONE YOU CALL THE DARSHANA.
